

ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

A mobile communications system including a plurality of base stations, and a radio controller controlling each base station is disclosed. The radio 5 controller sets for each base station an offset value based on the communications quality at that base station so as to set a target transmission power value of a downlink from the base station to a mobile station, enabling an appropriate controlling of 10 the transmission power of the downlink using a power-balancing control.